PRICE TWO CENTS

Three of us talked of "the glory that was Greece." What "Foxy Grandpa" Keegan couldn't remember, Don Cameron could, and to us the least of those recollections was in for the memoirs of a king. Ah! them was the happy days.

The piece of resistance was a clipping which Don's mother had stowed away when it was a scintilla in the "toons." It was his first sport page head liner, and ran as follows:

BASE BALL
After a Hotly Contested Game, the La Crosse Happers Defeat the La Crescent Boys.

A friendly game of baseball between the "Happers" of La Crosse and the La Crescent team was witnessed with much pleasure and interest on the grounds at La Crescent Thursday by a large and enthusiastic audience. The game was hotly contested throughout and was angled game for the first three innings so perfect was the work of the batteries, Spence and Matthews, and Keegan and Ryan. Excitement ran high in the fourth, however, when Spence weakening—gave three men bases on balls; a tall fellow stepped to the plate and made a long drive in to right field. There was a yell from the bleachers; three men were stranded home; a cloud of dust arose from third base and in seconds to come Don Cameron will tell his children's children how their grandfather made a "three bagger." Spence gave way to Withrow in the fifth, but when Manager Torrance put the stalwart McKee in the box in the sixth, that ended the "run getting" for La Crescent.

The following are the positions of players:

La Crosse Position Crescent
Matthews... Catcher... Ryan
Spence... Pitcher... Keegan
Withrow... First Base... Cameron
Luther... Second Base... Luther Torrance... Third Base... Webster
Cameron... Right Field... Glenn
Will Powell... Left Field... C. Brown
Ted Powell... Short Stop... H. Brown
Keegan... C. Field... Handorf

The score:
La Crosse... 200400001—7
La Crescent... 100310000—5

Time of Game, 1:55; Umpire, Heberd and Smith.

Special features: The fielding of Will Powell and Brayton, and the work at short by Ted Powell.

Charles Heberd filled the position of Umpire with credit to himself and satisfaction to the audience.

The Happers returned home on the evening train loud in their praises of the La Crescent boys for the manner in which they were treated.

That was in '93", Don mused. The lapse of twenty-two years was recorded in a few white hairs on the temple of the big first-sacker.

"You came in for a few laurels," said Keegan. "Special features holding Powell and Brayton." I recalled Ellis B. Usher's conclusion that the Bible calls the Jews the chosen people because they wrote the book. Twenty-two years ago I had brazenly written that self glorification and handed it to the sport editor of the old Republican and Leader, but I said nothing about that—only modestly deprecated the yarn.

Keegan smiled—perhaps Keegan remembered asking me to act as press agent?

Keegan pitched for the La Crescent team. Tom was the biggest kid that ever spit in a mitt. He didn't have a thing but a superb head and magnificent nerve. With him it was a matter of policy to take a punch at the umpire in the first inning and growl and threaten with every pitched ball. He never completed the circuit without cutting a base, and his favorite way home was straight in from second through the pitcher's box. He had Pink Hawley out-Pinked and out-Hawleyed, but he won more games for La Crescent than any pitcher who ever served them straight and slow to the toes of that game little community.

Of the La Crescent team four—Luther, Glenn, Ryan and Handorf—are dead, but all of the Happers would turn up alive and lying could one take time to ransack Life's bush league for them.

One fateful day I drove the La Crescent "nine" to Hokah, where we played Hank Hoal's "Hay-foots". I hitched the team, a spirited pair of colts belonging to my father, to a railroad trestle. We finished the game at nightfall and romped victoriously back to the car. A broken halter strap was all there remained to prove that we had once had an equine.

We borrowed a lantern and tramped back, seven miles, picking up bits of wagon wreckage and harness straps all the way. Next day my father said:

"My son, I'm convinced that you'll never amount to anything, so I'm going to educate you. Get ready to go to High School in La Crosse Monday."

What wisdom had remained unwritten, what lyrics unsung, what kings unmade but for that fateful run-away. Think of this abysmal truth—but for that catastrophic ball game there never would have been a Tribune. Indeed, conjecture may even moot at what hour the world would have ceased to annihilate space, but for that "famous victory."

But there! There're things a modest man must not say. To return to the clipping, we had talked long about Al Cameron's amateur homers, how John Moore would have burned up the big leagues had not he preferred to devote his life to a C. M. & St. P. throttle, the total of Don's fines for lipping umpires and how Jim Selby caught fourteen fly-balls and scored eleven runs in the famous Dakota game. Finally I started to put the treasured clipping in my pocket.

"Never!" declared Don. "Come across! There's a prophetic paragraph in that yarn and I'm going to keep it until the day of judgment."

I searched the clipping, dear reader, for the prophecy. Will it ever come true?

Search me, too! As the cigarette tends say, "Don has th' makin's"

MARK OF THE MOVIES

With due apologies to Mr. Gelett Burgess (No, Clarice, he is not related to the boss), we present the following placid plagiarism:

I never met a movie star.
Some day I hope to see one—
But I can tell you this: by far
I'd rather see than be one.

One moment, please, for changing reels. Please keep your seats.

Now, my movie maniacs, let us unite in warbling a hymn in praise of the weekly, the movie magazine which shows us such events of the world's career as happened to take place near a camera. Please come out strong on the chorus:

A fire in Minskogon—
A carnival in Troy—
A clambake in Waukegan—
A view of Eddie Foy—
A smile from Mr. Bryan—
A silent speech from Ted—
Some refugees a-sighin'—
Some Turco's bein' fed—
Ah! Mixed as wurst and succotash
Is this—our weekly movie hash.
We'd like it better, we may state,
Were it not three or four weeks late.

CHOR.
Yes, mixed as wurst and succotash
Is this—our weekly movie hash.
We'd like it better, we may state,
Were it not three or four weeks late.

WAISTS MUST CURVE IN

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Abas the Russian blouse—the fat lady's friend—and all bulging, baggy waists of that ilk, ruled the Fashion Art league today in its weekly style edict. Hereafter, said the league, waists and waist lines are to be smaller. They won't be of the hour-glass style of years gone by, but they will be "fitted" and the style calls for more curve (concave, not convex) at the waist than has been the rule for several years.

"Golden Rule Absolutism" Not Sufficient to Guarantee Right Treatment of Workers

MINE WORKER DESCRIBES FIGHT

John R. Lawson Tells Federal Industrial Relations Committee Democracy in Colorado Is Failure

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Government ownership of raw material and transportation is needed to provide jobs for the jobless in the opinion of Amos Pinchot, lawyer and reformer. He so told the federal industrial relations committee today. Pinchot took sharp issue with the men who have approved the unlimited power of the various charitable foundations and educational boards. And he charged directly that they are a menace as they poison education at the source.

Pinchot and John R. Lawson of the United Miners were today's only witnesses. Lawson pictured a vivid picture of labor's industrial war in Colorado.

He renewed the allegation that the coal operators control the state and quietly admitted that so far as his state at present was concerned, democracy was a failure.

Pinchot advocated government ownership of railroads, and government ownership of natural resources with a leasing system as the panacea for industrial unrest.

One of the elements which makes for trouble, in Pinchot's opinion, was the inability of labor generally to get

Dangerous Pitfalls Await City if Council Permits State Rail Commission To Dictate Franchise Terms

The state railroad commission has advised Clement C. Smith, president of the Wisconsin Railway, Light and Power company, owners of the La Crosse street car lines, that the commission desires that the La Crosse city council grant the company an exclusive franchise over the Rose street viaduct.

The commission gives as its reason the fact that, at its discretion, the commission may grant other street and inter-urban companies that right to use the viaduct which the city council proposes to reserve in the franchise, and that therefore the reservation is unnecessary.

President Smith says he wants an exclusive franchise because a reservation regarding wheelage, in the franchise, would cause bonding companies to hesitate to undertake the sale of the company's bonds.

If the commission's authority is the exact equivalent of the proposed wheelage reservation, why does the commission object to the reservation going into the franchise?

Further, under these conditions—if they amount to the same thing—how does President Smith think the wheelage clause would affect bond sales? If the commission's authority means exactly what the wheelage clause would mean, bonding houses would have the same objection to the commission's authority that they would have to the wheelage reservation clause.

The fact of the matter seems to be that THERE IS A DIFFERENCE. The difference is that the commission MAY grant another company use of the viaduct, but IS NOT COMPELLED to do so. There must be a hearing to show necessity, and the commission decides whether or not there is any necessity.

Nor do we accept without reservation President Smith's declaration that he would welcome the coming of an interurban company. The contributions of both President Smith and the commission to information upon the subject fail to carry conviction. They leave us in the dark, but even in the dark, perhaps, one may find "the nigger in the woodpile."

Turning to similar situations in other cities, we find that where an interurban enters a municipality in which there is an established street car service a conflict is almost certain to ensue. The trouble is that in passing in and out of the city the interurban line naturally picks up some intra-city business that otherwise would go to the street car company.

Wouldn't an exclusive franchise to a viaduct commanding entrance to the city be a fine club with which to drive a satisfactory bargain with the new interurban clamoring at the city's portals?

Another danger! What if the commission's power were revoked by the legislature, leaving the company in unconditional possession of the exclusive franchise? This very day, January 30, 1915, there was introduced into the legislature a bill depriving the commission of all authority over public utilities in cities. Should we grant the unconditional franchise, and should this bill pass, the traction company would have an absolute monopoly on the street. If this bill fails, another may pass. This city can not trust its future development to anything so uncertain as the caprice of a political legislature.

We think the mayor and the aldermen will drive right at these points. If they do it is more than likely that they will have "the right sow by the ear."

The commission's reason—that it amounts to nothing either way, because the commission would do what the restricted franchise would do—seems indeed a trivial justification for the commission's attempt to influence the business of the La Crosse common council. Its stand in the matter may be a proper activity for the railroad commission, but there are hundreds of strap-hanging galley slaves in La Crosse who will agree that it would be more to the point did the commission have a fling at securing for La Crosse those long-promised ampler modern street cars and at providing sufficient cars for rush-hour and theater service, morning heat and other conveniences that were contemplated when the people turned their streets over to the traction corporation.

PARIS REPORTS TABRIZ TAKEN

French Paper Prints Story That Important City of Persia Has Fallen Before the Russians

PARIS, Jan. 30.—The Paris Matin today claimed to have received dispatches that Russian troops have occupied Tabriz, capital of the Persian province of Aserbajan.

Petrograd dispatches today placed the advancing Russian army about eighteen miles northwest of Tabriz. The Turkish official statement today claimed that the Russians had been checked at Chol, sixty miles northwest of Tabriz. Tabriz is a city of 175,000 and next to Teheran, the largest in Persia.

G. O. P. FILIBUSTER LASTS ALL NIGHT

On Second Day of Continuous Session This Afternoon with Republicans Still Going

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Republican senators continued their verbal bombardment of the administration this afternoon in the filibuster against the ship purchase bill. This was the second day of the senate's continuous session, featured by an all-night speech by Senator Smoot of Utah that was unique in senatorial long distance talking contests.

Senator Lodge was the main republican speaker this afternoon. This speech bristled with criticism of the president.

At 7:30 Smoot was still going "fresh" after talking since 9:50 last night. Without the aid of such filibuster methods as reading the bible or putting into the record the latest Mexican news or society scandal, the Utah solon was still talking on the general subject of shipping.

SIX CENT BREAD HITS CITY MONDAY SAY THE BAKERS

Department of Weights and Measures Holds the Old Ordinance Valid and Good

SEALER DERR GETS DECISION

Carl Kremer, State Inspector, Sides with Bakers and Advises Price Increase

Hereafter La Crosse housewives will get "16 ounce bread."

La Crosse's "large loaf ordinance" governing the sale of bread, was held valid today by the state department of weights and measures at Madison.

In a communication to E. H. Derr, city sealer of weights and measures, this morning, the department advised him that the state net weight container law does not affect the authority of the city to fix any standard weights of bread it may decide upon.

Following the receipt of the department's interpretation of the law, Sealer Derr announced he would cause the arrest of any person selling shortweight bread in La Crosse until the law is either revoked or amended.

The bakers beat Mr. Derr to it today however, because at their meeting last night they decided to keep the "large loaf" ordinance. They will not fight it, but instead may raise the wholesale price to five cents, thus making it cost the consumers six cents a loaf, as it already does in Chicago, Milwaukee and other large cities.

Another Meeting Pending

Two meetings of La Crosse bakers were held at the Stoddard hotel yesterday. At the second meeting, held in the evening, the bakers came to the final conclusion that they were gaining nothing by decreasing the size of the loaf, but that some other method had to be followed.

Another meeting at the Stoddard hotel tonight or tomorrow will decide.

CHECK COMES BACK BUT SWINDLER GOES DETROIT IS STUNG

Robb E. Jolson, White Slave and Bank Cheater, Is Wanted in Many Cities

GETS NOTHING IN LA CROSSE

Security Bank Frustrates Check Raising Scheme with Perforating Machine

Robb E. Jolson, much wanted by La Crosse police and federal authorities for enticing Selma Andrin of St. Paul to La Crosse for immoral purposes and later abandoning her, is wanted worse in Detroit, Mich., today.

Jolson perpetrated exactly the same kind of a check swindle in Detroit on January 29, at that he attempted to pull off on the Security State Bank of La Crosse Thursday, according to advices received by Chief Webber today.

In Detroit Jolson victimized the Highland Park Auto company out of two second hand Ford automobiles and $175 in cash by raising a check on the Chapin National Bank of Springfield from $8 to $800. The machines were shipped to Chicago and never traced and the swindler got away.

Jolson's $1200 Was Mythical

Advices to the police and bank to cause the arrest of Jolson, and warning against him as a dangerous check raiser and forger, came today—too late to cause his detention.

Jolson's check, drawn on the Chapin National Bank of Springfield, Mass., for $1,206.80, made payable to the Security Savings bank of this city, also was today returned to this bank unpaid, and accompanying it was a letter from James R. Miller, denouncing Jolson as a much wanted crook for whom all of the large detective agencies are looking.

Miller described the check given the Detroit people as an exact duplicate of the one given here and recommended that Jolson be turned over to the Burns Detective bureau which has warrants for him.

Didn't Get a Cent Here

Jolson's work in La Crosse didn't net him a cent. He succeeded in drawing only the ten dollars in cash he had deposited in the bank through the precatation of the bank's officials in perforating a check for $8 which Jolson had prepared to raise to $800, according to the police.

The hotel at which he and Miss Selma Andrin of St. Paul stopped together for four days was reimbursed through the confiscation of baggage which the young man left.

Short StoryWHEN BLUFF MEETS BLUFF

BY CATHERINE COOPE

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"I've never been so chicken-hearted about anything in my life," sighed young George Madison.

"About what?—introducing the speaker? It's as simple as shooting fish," said his chum, consolingly. "Make a pretty bow, show your teeth, clear your throat and go on to say that Mme. So and So—and so and so—"

"Never mind! Do it yourself, if you are such an adept. I'm all right and perfectly at home with the fellows, and presiding at a regular meeting of the league is fine, but when it comes to having a hall full of mixed genders and a real live lady speaker, I've got cold feet—that's all."

The Young Men's league of the village of Rawson had been prevailed upon by a local organization of women to have a speaker come out from the city to talk on woman suffrage, it being a campaign year in the state.

George Madison, president of the league, was the chairman of the evening, as it had been planned, and was to introduce Mrs. Robert Lane Lawton, famous suffrage speaker, society leader, etc. The whole village, suffrage sympathizers—and anti-suffragists of both sexes would be present. Madison was to have his car stop at the train, and he himself, being possessed of the one and only limousine in the village, was to escort the speaker to the hall—hall of agony it now seemed to him.

The train was painfully prompt and so was the strikingly dressed person who alighted from it wearing a tiny yellow satin robe—the emblem by which she was to be known to the reception committee.

Madison approached her and raised his hat. "Mrs. Lawton?" he asked in a voice strangely unafraid.

"Yes—a—that is, Mrs. Lawton was taken ill at the eleventh hour, and I—Dorothy Lane—being her understudy, so to speak, had to come in her stead. She's so distressed, I—"

"Don't worry for a moment," George hastened to say. "I assure you we are more than grateful to you for coming to so unimportant a meeting."

They had stopped before the comfortable limousine, and Madison himself opened the door to let her in. "To the high school building," Horton. And in an undertone to the trusted family chauffeur, "There's no great hurry. Horton. It's early for the meeting."

He thought he detected a nervous little sigh as he took his seat beside Miss Lane. "Do you expect a big crowd?" she asked. And then he was sure of the nervousness.

Oddly enough, all his own fear had vanished at sight of the lovely young woman. "Yes," he said, "but—it is a crowd unaccustomed to the educated speakers of the city."

He heard another sigh, muffled as best the girl could muffle it in such close proximity. She tapped her toes incessantly and gave every evidence of being unhappily ill at ease.

"I'm going to introduce you," Madison vouchsafed as if to put her at ease. Surely no one could be afraid of him.

"Oh, how very nice!" said Miss Lane.

"A-ah, yes—nice of you," added George.

Then there was silence. The car moved silently over the good county roads. Presently George turned to the girl at his side. What? Could it be possible? Yes—she was—she was crying hysterically. She was bravely trying to hold back the sobs, but they would not be checked.

"Oh, Miss Lane—!" George stopped. He knew not what to say.

"I—I'm so desperately frightened—so dreadfully nervous that I—"

The girl went on crying.

George let her cry for a moment while he tried to think of something sane to say. He knew almost how she felt. He had felt that way himself until he had seen her.

After a few moments she regained her equilibrium sufficiently to look at him through the remaining tears.

"I—I'm so dreadfully frightened—so dreadfully nervous that I—"

The girl went on crying.

George let her cry for a moment while he tried to think of something sane to say. He knew almost how she felt. He had felt that way himself until he had seen her.

CHURCH NEWSNew York Prepares to Welcome Billy Sunday

New York city is getting ready to welcome the Rev. William A. Sunday, the evangelist. Committees are forming, and prayer meetings and choirs are to start by districts before the winter is over. Mr. Sunday has not consented to visit that city, but it is reported there that Mrs. Sunday has agreed that it will be wise for her husband to accept an invitation, and so New York counts on a visit from him. A campaign has been recommended to raise $100,000 for expenses. It was at first put at $50,000 but has been doubled. New York seems to believe that Mr. Sunday will cancel other dates to accept one of its naming, but the Sunday managers have not yet said they would do so.

Bodies in New York that are leading in the invitation are the Methodist and the Reformed, the latter the Dutch church of the name. Some Presbyterians have joined in the call, through their ministers, but to date all of the pastors of prominent Presbyterian churches of the city have held aloof. None attended any of the meetings yet held. Congregational ministers have openly criticized Sunday and his methods, and Episcopals and Lutherans have kept out. The city, in its Protestant and evangelistic side, is stirred to its depth over the Sunday question.

Catholics Establish a Big Brother Movement

Catholics have established a Big Brother movement on lines exactly like the original movement of the name, founded through the efforts of Ernest K. Coulter and others. The Holy Name society, the Knights of Columbus and the Hibernian society have assigned members to co-operate with this new Catholic movement. Headquarters have been established in New York, and starts have been made in Boston, Chicago, and Baltimore toward local movements there.

The original Big Brother movement, which has just issued its eighth annual report, is handling about 2,500 cases a year, and co-operating closely with the Children's Courts. It has, in some cities, been instrumental with others in founding of Children's courts. The movement is extending to other cities besides the large ones, and especially in the south. In England its work is done by the Berardo Homes in great measure, but it is growing even there.

Y. M. C. A. Secretaries To Accompany Fleet

Three welfare secretaries from the Young Men's Christian association will accompany the fleet that is soon to start for the Pacific coast, passing through the Panama canal on the way. Arriving at San Francisco there will be 35,000 enlisted men, and so the association will erect temporary places for work and lodging. A great number of marines being there also, the Panama-Pacific exposition is erecting a building to be used by the association for work among the marines. There is also to be on the grounds a model tent, such as is employed in army posts and at naval stations. It will be in charge of Welfare Secretary W. W. Elder.

Methodists Report Gain in Mission Contributions

The Methodist foreign board reports the very unusual experience, just as it was about to close its 1914 books, of the receipt of legacies amounting to $150,000 in value, and coming to it in the form of invested stocks. The board reported a gain of $12,000 for 1914, but its corrected figures, just issued, are $162,000 ahead, the largest sum including the late arrival of stocks.

The same board reports receipts to date of $90,000 for its European war relief, and an increase on its 1915 budget of $9,000 as compared with the previous year. Methodists have extensive missions in Italy, the Balkans, Germany and even in Austria-Hungary, and this war relief fund is for Methodist missions in Europe. The board regards the outlook favorable at this time, and is leading in the new crusade about to start in South America.

Here is an amusing instance of historic conceit. An interviewer, having obtained access to the presence of a famous actor, asked the great man if he would be kind enough to describe some of his early failures. "Str," snapped the tragedian, "I never had any! James—the door!"—Puck.

Daddy's Bedtime

How the Little Dutch Children Skate to School.

The Boys Can Do Clever Fancy Skating.

"I'm coming on fine with the skates you got for me for Christmas, daddy," shouted Jack as he and Evelyn came to their father for the evening story. "I was practicing all this afternoon, and I only fell down four times."

"That is very good, Jack," approved daddy. "Not to fall down more than four times while learning to skate is certainly doing very well. In time you will learn to skate as well as the Dutch children."

"What about the Dutch children, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Well, girle," daddy told her, "I suppose they're the best little skaters you will find anywhere unless you except the children of Scandinavia, which is to say, Norway and Sweden, for, you see, they do so much of it."

"There is good reason for this, of course. The European country of Holland, which is one of the few European countries not now at war, is very low and flat, and the Dutch build walls of earth that they call dikes to keep the sea from running over upon the lowland. So great canals are formed all through the country, which is rather small and is ruled over by the good Queen Wilhelmina."

"There are so many of these canals, and such nice smooth ice forms over them in the winter time that the little Dutch boys and girls do a great deal of skating. It is the common fashion for the youngsters to skate to and from school, using the canal instead of a road, and I suppose it must be a very funny sight to see the little Dutch boys and girls, the boys with their very full knee breeches and the girls with their several bouncing skirts and white headresses, skating to their school with the very sober faces that Dutch children have when they are not laughing."

"The boys can do clever fancy skating, too, though they are not as good with this as the Swedish and Norwegian boys, who are the most wonderful fancy skaters in the world. You should see them whirl round and round like tops!"

"But the Dutch children skate very swiftly, and they go to market on their skates, too, and bring back big baskets full of food for their good mammas to cook."

"The Dutch people are very picturesque, and heaps of pictures are painted of Holland and the windmills. I'll tell you a story one evening about the windmills of Holland."

"Now, Riddles must go to bed," said daddy.

"Good night, daddy."

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

DENY HOBSON CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Administration officials today issued disclaimers to charges of Representative Hobson of Alabama that as the price of peace with Japan, the United States had prepared speedily to abandon the Philippines. His suggestion that this nation sought to "get from under" in case of hostilities with Japan or any other power, was branded as entirely false.

BEE STINGS BURTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Senator Burton of Ohio was "among those mentioned" today for republican presidential honors in 1916, as a result of suggestions for his candidacy before the Ohio state society banquet last night.

Making Old Mantles New.

When your gas mantle becomes black in spots and does not give a good light, do not waste good money by throwing it away and buying a new one, because you can make the old mantle as good as new by just burning a dim light, as the black spots will gradually become white again by the above process.—In "Home Department," National Magazine.

The Fiery Cross.

The fiery cross was an ancient summons to arms used in the Scottish Highlands, and was sent by swift messengers from place to place. It was a small cross of light wood, the extremities of which were set on fire, and then dipped in the blood of a goat. This custom is said to have also been in use among the Goths.

KILL THE BILL

The attention of La Crosse business men is directed to the fact that the bill to repeal the state aid for farmers merits a full measure of opposition.

It passed, the repeal probably would not our interstate fair out of business for private citizens would and be willing to raise the lost $3,000 by subscription.

It is possible, reasoning from the fact that past attempts to abolish the state aid have been defeated, to fall into the error of fancied security. There may be real danger this time. It should be remembered that the present administration is committed to a policy of retrenchments, and that the pruning knife will follow the course of least resistance.

The moral is, "resist!"

PROPHECY AND EXPERIENCE

B. E. McCormick, principal of the high school, has given an interview in which he admits that the seating capacity of the high school is inadequate for the membership.

About seven years ago Dr. Wendell A. Anderson, then mayor, was pressing the plans for the high school building in the city council. An all-german arose with the declaration that His Honor was bankrupting the community for a structure the capacity of which was in excess of what the city would need fifty years hence.

Seven years ago, and today the high school is over-crowded.

Dr. Anderson knew what he was doing. In that debate he observed that attendance was small, in part, because of the poor housing, and that the new school and equipment would be a magnet to attract a much larger percentage of high school attendance.

There were something over 300 pupils in the high school at the time of that interesting controversy seven years ago. Today there are 992, almost 1,000. Our blind-sight of today gives a clear insight into the foresight of Dr. Anderson in 1907.

WHY NOT THE NICKEL BUS?

Why not the jitney (nickel) bus for La Crosse?

The jitney bus is a five-cent auto service to any part of the city. It was born but a few months ago. Already San Francisco has 2,000 jitney buses, and Seattle 500. Throughout the west and southwest they are coming into use like the coming of locusts. Fort Worth and Houston, Texas, are the latest cities to fall in line. They work out well in cities the size of La Crosse. They earn an average of $7 per day, net.

The jitney bus picks you up anywhere and sets you down anywhere. You hail it anywhere, in the middle of the block if you please. It will call at your place of business and leave you at your door. It is faster than the street car.

This for FIVE CENTS! Wherever it has appeared street car influences are at work to secure ordinances to hamper the jitney. It has "thrown a scare into the magnates," it threatens their monopoly.

We predict that the La Crosse man whose enterprise shall make him the La Crosse pioneer of the jitney bus will make a fortune.

Think this over when you are dangling from a strap on the six o'clock car tonight.

NEW MAP OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

Maps of Europe are not the only things which will have to be materially altered after the peace conference which will stop the unpleasantness in Europe. Lexicons of military phraseology will also be remodeled along lines hewed out by the war.

Among the changes which occur to us as necessary are the following:

Winter quarters—Trench filled with half frozen mud.

Treaty—Scrap of paper.

Contraband—Cargo of neutral ship consigned to neutral port.

Fort—Mausoleum for gunners (obsolescence).

Battleship—Target for submarines.

Advance—Extension of trench for any distance up to twenty yards.

Great Victory—Russian term used to denote maintaining ground.

War Office—Press agents' headquarters.

War Correspondent—Extinct species, name sometimes applied by magazines to a author developing expense account 200 miles in rear of front.

War Correspondence—Realistic description of author's desperate attempts to find place to eat and sleep. Recognized by liberal use of extremely singular first person.

Two familiar expressions, however, will stand: "strategic withdrawal" and "orderly retreat before superior force."

Mexican court has decided that it is no crime to call a man a bandit. It is hard to call any Mexican anything else and tell the truth.

It will soon be time to introduce submarines and airships in the baseball war.

The weather may be seasonable, but it never seems to be exactly reasonable.

Wheat should be entered in the Olympic games for the high jump.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Chimes of Termonde

The groping spires have lost the sky. That reach from Termonde town. There are no bells to travel by. The minster chimes are down. It's forth we must alone, alone. And try to find the way. The bells that we have always known, War broke their hearts today.

They used to call the morning Along the gilded street, And then their rhymes were laughter. And all their notes were sweet.

I heard them stumble down the air Like seraphim betrayed; God must have heard their broken prayer

That made my soul afraid. The Termonde bells are gone, are gone,

And what is left to say? It's forth we must, by bitter dawn, To try to find the way.

They used to call the children To go to sleep at night; And then their songs were tender And drowsy with delight.

The wind will look for them in vain Within the empty tower. We shall not hear them sing again At dawn or twilight hour. It's forth we must, away, away, And far from Termonde town, But this is all I know today— The chimes, the chimes are down!

They used to ring at evening To help the people pray. Who wander now bewildered And cannot find the way. —Grace Hazard Conkling in Atlantic Monthly.

Not Now

A domestic employed in a prosperous looking home went to the apartments of her mistress and gently tapped on the door.

"Come in, Norah," responded the mistress, glancing up from the book she was reading. "What do you wish?"

"Shure, ma'am," answered Norah, "there is a man down at the front dure wid wooden legs."

"Tell him we are very sorry, Norah," directed the mistress, as she resumed her reading, "but we don't need any today." —Exchange.

The Ticklesome Man

A tourist in Ireland, driving along a country road, drew the larvae's attention to a miserable looking tatter-demon by the roadside and remarked: "What a shocking thing it is to see a man in such rags and misery."

"Begorra, then, yer honor," replied the driver, with the characteristic Irish desire to put a good face on everything, "that's not from poverty at all, at all. The truth is that the man's so ticklesome that sorta a tailor in the country can attempt to take his measure."

Cloaked Her Identity

Much to the curious little girl's disgust her elder sister and her girl friends had quickly closed the door of the back parlor before she could wedge her small self in among them.

She waited uneasily for a little while, then she knocked. No response. She knocked again. Still no attention. Her curiosity could be controlled no longer. "Dodo!" she called in staccato tones as she knocked once again. "Tain't me! It's ma-ma!"

Repudiated

"I am a self-made man," said Mr. Cumrox.

"Didn't your wife have something to do with your career?"

"She used to say so. But after seeing how I behave in society she refuses to take any of the blame!" —Washington Star.

Same Old Prophet

"What is your occupation?" asked the judge of a witness.

"Same ole thing, judge—prayer for rain or shine as they're needed, an' predictin' the end of the world whenever the signs pint that-away." —Atlanta Constitution.

Unprofitable Sympathy

Mrs. Exe—That last cook I had was awful; I'm glad she's gone.

Mrs. Wye—Did you discharge her?

Mrs. Exe—No; I wished to avoid a scene. What I did was to flatter her so about her cooking that she thought she was underpaid and left. —Boston Transcript.

Smaller Accumulation

"Old Lady (meeting two little boys)—Why, Johnnie, how very dirty you are. How is it that your little brother is so much cleaner than you are?"

Johnnie—Well, you see, he's three years younger.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 30.—Lillian Smith, who was arrested on a charge of perjury during the trial of Fred L. Herwig, manager of the Davidson hotel, whom she alleged assaulted her, attempted suicide at the county jail today. She swallowed a quantity of sodium bromide which had been prescribed for a cold. She will recover.

The Best of Chester

A TALE OF RED ROSES

By Geo. Randolph Chester

An hour of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford, Etc.

Copyright 1914, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

Lord Bunnechase was a yellow-mustached man, with a particularly surly face, who spraddled stiffly through a two-step with her, and made three remarks, consisting of three separate apologies for bumping her into other dancers, but, in spite of the fact that he was the least distinguished-looking of any of the gentlemen on the floor, Molly noticed, with a distinctly uncomfortable feeling, that not only were the eyes of all the dancers focused on them, but that the non-dancers suddenly thronged the doorways and the balconies, and never stopped staring.

With a sinking heart, she realized once more the impertinent organization methods of Sledge, who had stage-managed this whole affair so that the identity of Lord Bunnechase should not be known until she was on the floor with him, thus giving her the acute center of the stage. Sledge was bound to give her the time of her life, confound him!

CHAPTER XVII

Another Proof of the Chief's Earnest Affection.

Just off the governor's stuffed leather library was a small room, with a hard desk and six hard chairs, and a hard-looking letter file, and a hard, fire-proof safe let into the wall, and here, while Lord Bunnechase led Molly Marley through the paces of a hard two-step, Governor Waver, and Senator Allerton, and Sledge, and Frank Marley gathered for a few moments of comfortable chat, such as elderly gentlemen love to indulge in while frivolous younger people dance the flying hours away. All four being gentlemen who, by the consent of the public, bore the grave responsibility of the public welfare on their shoulders, it was not strange that their chat should turn to public affairs.

"I am glad to be identified with the enterprise," avowed State Senator Allerton, who was a suave clean-faced gentleman, with a good forehead and a quite negotiable tongue.

"At the same time, as far as I am privately concerned, I can only regard it as a temporary investment."

"Why temporary?" demanded Frank Marley, who was feeling particularly capable this evening. His hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars' worth of street-railway stock had been increased to two hundred and sixty-two thousand five hundred. He was to have eighty-seven thousand five hundred dollars cash out of the undivided surplus of the old company, and his daughter, Molly, was the most popular girl at the governor's ball. "The street-railway company has always made money, and the city needs additional transportation facilities. We have reached the normal period of extension, and I do not see what is to prevent us from limitless prosperity."

"The franchises," Senator Allerton reminded him. "Your present permits have less than five years to run."

"I have never had any trouble in having them renewed," objected Marley, priding himself on his management.

"Times are changing," sighed Allerton. "There is a growing disposition on the part of the public to charge public-service corporations for the use of public property."

"The people are ungrateful," mourned Governor Waver, who had enriched himself through furnishing electric light, at his own price, to a public which had known nothing better than gas. "The moment they see a profit on their luxuries they want part of it. An undivided surplus, such as the street-car company has had, is a constant menace."

"That was a sinking fund for extensions and improvements," Marley reminded him. "The stockholders had no right to ask for a division of it."

"They would, if we had not put it out of harm's road," insisted the governor. "That much has been saved to the men who really earned it, but I should not like to see a similar profit exposed. To my mind, a seven per cent dividend is an even worse folly."

"It gives confidence in the stock," argued Marley. "The public would never be so eager to take up this new issue, if it had not been for that seven per cent dividend."

"That's what it was for," interjected Sledge, looking out of the window into the sunken garden and vainly hunting the hand-hole in the gate.

"It has served its purpose," granted Allerton, "but taxpayers are becoming greedy. When they see the stockholders of a public corporation making seven per cent, they want some of it, and try to make the corporations pay part of their taxes. In every city of importance, the voters are demanding pay for street-car franchises, and making the street-railway companies, in addition, bear half the cost of all street improvements."

"It's a bad outlook," agreed Governor Waver. "Frankly, as soon as I receive my new issue of stock, I shall have it quietly placed on sale."

Marley looked at him indignantly. "Why, the street-railway company is entering on the greatest period of prosperity in its career," he asserted. "There'll be no trouble about franchises. The city is wild to have the improvements, and must have them."

Allerton looked at him wonderingly.

"Waver is right," he stated. "I shall sell my own stock, and I'll venture to say that Sledge has already made silent arrangements for disposing of his. Do you know that the franchises at present granted in this state are revocable, and that it is not possible to secure one which is positively safe for longer than ten-year periods? When you come to the renewal of your franchises, Marley, you will be met with a demand for pay, and will have other restrictions imposed on you. Our present franchise law, in view of the public tendency, is a bad one for investors."

"Let's fix it," suggested Sledge.

"I'm afraid it's too late," protested Allerton.

"Not for a new gag," dissented Sledge. "A new one can be put over quick."

"I fancy that there should be protection somewhere," opined the governor. "No matter what changes in public sentiment, the investing class, upon which the public depends for prosperity, must always be protected."

"But how?" inquired the senator.

"How, in this particular case?"

"Head 'em off," grunted Sledge. "I'm keeping my stock."

Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Browns has just made known one of the many innovations he has applied to the management of a big league club. It is a test by which he knows whether or not a player has good nerve. It is impossible to tell why Methuselah lived so long. It is more than likely that the patriarch died long before he had reached the age of 950 years. In a word, no one nowadays whose opinion is worth anything believes that the "patriarchs" lived any longer than men do these times.

Was Lower Animal

One of the professors at a certain university has often been spared much embarrassment by his quickness at repartee.

One afternoon as he was in the midst of a speech somebody attempted to interrupt him by suddenly crowing like a rooster. It was done to perfection, and a number of students laughed in spite of themselves.

The professor, however, was equal to the occasion. He stopped, listened till the crowing ceased, and then, with a look of surprise pulled out his watch.

"Morning already!" he said. "My watch is on half past three. But there can be no mistake about it; the instinct of the lower animal is infallible."

There was a roar of laughter. The "lower animal" collapsed, and the lecturer continued his discourse as if nothing had occurred.

Had Him at Sea?

It is the custom of a minister in a certain country town to read in church the requests for the prayers of the congregation. Not long ago the minister was absent and the city clergyman, who did not know the custom officiated in his place. At the usual time the deacon handed the notices to the minister, explaining what was to be done with them. In a few moments the congregation was startled to hear:

"A man going to see his wife desires the prayers of the congregation for his safe return."

The notice really read: "A man going to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation for his safe return."

One on the Parson

The new clergyman was sent for by an elderly lady.

"Oh, sir," she said. "I hope you will excuse my asking you to call, but when I heard you preach and pray last Sunday you did so remind me of my poor brother who was took from me that I felt I must speak with you."

"And how long ago did your poor brother die?" asked the clergyman, sympathetically.

"Oh, sir, he isn't dead," was the reply, "he was took to the asylum."

REPORT ENGLISH AVIATORS DROWNED

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, Jan. 30.—Three of seven English aviators who bombarded Ostend and Zeebrugge were drowned in the Straits of Dover with their observers, according to dispatches printed in Basle newspapers. The English squadron was engaged by German airmen. The three English biplanes, finding their retreat cut off by the Germans, fled seaward. They dropped into the water when their supplies of gasoline became exhausted.

ONE LAW PASSED IN THREE WEEKS

Legislation Proceeds Slowly at Madison; Committee Hearings Just Being Started

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Although the legislature has been in session nearly three weeks, but one law has been enacted and only a few committee hearings have been held. Based on the record of bills introduced in previous sessions, fewer measures have thus far been presented.

Both senate and assembly will start committee hearings next week. Senator Burke, chairman of the judiciary committee, has announced that the committee will hold a hearing next Wednesday on the Huber bill intended to facilitate the settlement of small uncontested estates, and on Wednesday the senate committee will hold a hearing on the Cunningham bill to compensate those farmers who lost their herds as the result of the outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease.

In the assembly, Chairman George P. Hambrecht of the judiciary committee, has announced hearings on eight bills for next Thursday. Two of the measures to be considered by the assembly judiciary committee are resolutions. One is the Spoor resolution to limit the number of bills that may be introduced by members and by committees. The other is the J. B. Jensen resolution to amend the state constitution limiting sessions of the legislature to 90 days.

Opposition to Krems Bill
The measure which will attract the largest hearing, however, is the Krems bill which is intended to reduce the wage exemption from $60 to $40. Assemblyman Hart of Oshkosh is one of the men who is preparing to make a fight against this bill. He says that as one class receives an exemption of forty acres of land it is not fair that the laborer should have his exemption cut from $60 to $40. He points out that a similar bill was vetoed by Senator La Follette and that there are now bills pending before the legislature to increase the exemption of Mexican and Civil war veterans to $1,200.

This committee will also give a hearing to the Beckwith bill for a commission form of government in counties and the Heim bill which will make it possible to garnish the wages to a public employe, town, city or state, if he declines to pay his debts.

On next Tuesday there will be a hearing on the Donnelly resolution which is aimed to suppress the report of the anti-vice committee on the ground that it is immoral and unfit reading for distribution.

On Thursday the state affairs committee of the senate will hold a hearing on the Cunningham bill to appropriate $25,000 for the purchase of a site for the ultimate founding of a home for crippled and deformed children and the Perry bill to change the official state paper from the Wisconsin State Journal to the Madison Democrat.

GERMANS REPORT ANNIHILATION OF FRENCH REGIMENT

Also Claim Gains West of La Bassee and Defeat of Russians at Insterburg

PARIS TELLS OF HARD DEFENSE

British Said to Have Driven Back Germans Who Charged Up to the Trenches

BERLIN, via Wireless, Jan. 30.—Almost complete annihilation of a French regiment in the western Argonne region was claimed in the official statement from the war office today. Important gains west of La Bassee and repulse of Russian assaults southeast of Insterburg were also reported.

The 155th French infantry regiment apparently has been annihilated, said the official bulletin, in reporting successful German attacks in the Argonne. "Five hundred French dead were found after the enemy retreated. We captured twelve officers, 731 men, twelve machine guns and ten small cannon."

West of La Bassee, where violent infantry fighting is again in progress, the Germans have captured two more trenches. These earthworks command a strong position of the enemy, who is defending the roads along a canal from La Bassee to Bethune.

Repulse Russians
Southwest of Insterburg, in East Prussia, a Russian attempt to force the passage of the Angorap river at Darkheim was repulsed. Russian artillery fire was directed against the German fortifications at the east approach to the river bridge at this point, but the attack was fruitless. Night attacks by the Russians on the German lines west of Warsaw also broke down.

Sacrifice Native Troops
Moroccan and Algerian troops were sacrificed recklessly by the allies in an attempt to gain ground along the sand dune country near the Belgian coast. Over 300 dead were picked up by the Germans after the French had retired.

South of Luneville, French night attacks were repulsed and the French were forced to evacuate the village of Augmont, northeast of Baden-viller.

Battle at La Bassee
PARIS, Jan. 30.—Furious fighting is in progress near La Bassee. Renewing their desperate infantry assaults upon the English positions, the Germans thus far have been repulsed with heavy losses.

Official dispatches today stated that at least three German battalions are engaged in this latest attempt to crush the English.

Civichy, held by the British, and the scene of bloody fighting earlier in the week, is again the center of the German attack.

The Germans advanced from La Bassee westward over the Bethune road, leading along the north bank of the canal. Absence of rain and snow in the past few days had dried up the fields in front of the British posts, and the enemy spread out in loose formation in charging upon the English trenches. British light artillery shattered the foremost ranks, but the Germans pressed on over the fields. Scattered groups succeeded in passing the wire entanglements and reaching the first England trenches. These were either annihilated by bayonets or taken prisoner. Fighting is still in progress, but dispatches from Bethune expressed confidence that the German assaults will be beaten off.

ride upon the wholesale price, which has practically been fixed at five cents. This will compel retail dealers to increase the price to the consumer to six cents.

One La Crosse baker represented that flour had risen one hundred per cent since the city ordinance fixing a uniform weight for the loaf was made thirteen years ago. Another held that on every barrel of flour which he made into bread, he was losing $2.

State Baker Inspector Carl Kremer, Madison, who talked to the gathering, coincided with the bread-makers that the price of flour was out of proportion to the La Crosse scale of prices. He told the bakers they had a right to raise their prices.

Bakery concerns represented at yesterday's meetings were the Gustave Halvorson baker, the Hood Street bakery, the La Crosse Baking company, the Park Bakery, Ruplin Baking company and Schulze Bakery.

To Ask Council Aid
Following the meeting last night the bakers communicated with Mayor Orl Sorensen asking permission to present a communication to the city council at its special session tonight. The contents of this message were not divulged but Mayor Sorensen promised to entertain the hearing provided there was no objection.

The bakers hate to part with the "large loaf" ordinance, it was said last night, because it was asked by them thirteen years ago to keep out St. Paul, Minneapolis and other outside breads which, being of short weight, were sold in competition with them at three loaves for a dime.

City Sealer Derr announced that several outside baking companies had been kept out of La Crosse by him, after he found they were cutting loaves to 14 ounces.

PHONE MEN SAY BUSINESS IS GOOD

Annual Report Shows More Than 17 Per Cent New Business in 1914; Dividends $13,960.78

Among La Crosse institutions, which after making up their annual statement for the year, have boasted loudly that "business is good," is the La Crosse Telephone company, whose annual report was made public today.

The company's increase in business in the year just closed was unprecedented.

Eight hundred and sixty-one "New Phones" were placed in La Crosse homes and business houses in 1914. At the close of December, 1913, there were 4,834 'phones in operation. The statement shows there are now 5,695.

Total assets of the company for 1914, were $243,141.47, as against $242,141.47, as against $223,695.16 in 1913.

Operating revenues during 1914 totaled $82,341.65. The total operating expenses during last year, including maintenance expense, traffic expense, commercial expense and general expense, were $62,188.73.

The operating income was $17,216.60. The net income of the concern in 1914 was $15,899.90.

With dividends of $13,960.78 and miscellaneous appropriations of income paid, the company had a new surplus of $1,649.69 at the close of December, 1914.

PINCHOT DECLARES STATE MUST OWN LAND RESOURCES

its side of the controversies fully and fairly treated in the public press. In this connection, he urged the commission to investigate the general handling of news by press associations.

Praises United Press

In this connection Pinchot cited what he termed concrete example of favoring the mine owners against the workers, and of distorted facts in connection with the West Virginia and upper Michigan strikes.

"There are two major news furnishing associations—the United Press and the Associated Press," he said. "The Associated Press sells news chiefly to morning papers and the United Press to evening papers. The United Press is conducted by a group of younger men, who have a broader attitude toward industrial questions, and who usually give fair treatment to both sides in their reports of conflicts between capital and labor. But the Associated Press, under older and more conservative management, takes affirmatively the side of capital."

Pinchot emphatically endorsed the labor unions and the principle of collective bargaining. Denial of the right to organize by the Steel corporation and the Colorado Fuel & Iron company and similar corporations, he denounced as "feudal and barbarous."

"Golden Rule Absolutism"

"Our great corporations are taking away every right from labor except the right to work at a wage hardly large enough to supply physical efficiency," said Pinchot. "In the system of golden rule absolutism, for which so many advocates have appeared before your committee, complete control—a control touching the most vital things in a man's life, and fixing the conditions in which he must work and live and try to support his family—is assumed by the employer. Such a system is unjust and impracticable."

"The cause of industrial unrest is the fact that there are more men than there are jobs all the time, and in hard times often a dozen men for each job. We must develop industry until there are more jobs than there are men. Today in this country, a condition of restriction exists which limits industry and therefore limits the amount of labor which is used in industry. Last year, the legislative assembly of New Jersey made a report which stated that 87 per cent of all the anthracite coal of the United States was owned or controlled by a combination of eleven railroads. The fact that this monopolistic group controls both the coal deposits themselves and the railroads which transport the coal, makes it utterly impossible for new capital to break into the situation in a large way."

Land Also Concentrating

"The Steel corporation owes its ability to prevent competition and fix prices because it owns and controls the natural resources and the railroads which haul the ore. The beef packing business is under much the same limitations. So is the lumber industry. Finally, the land itself is becoming more concentrated in the hands of fewer people. I have high authority for the statement that the tenant farmers are increasing four times as fast in this country as the owner farmers."

"Through the restriction of industry and the consequent power to fix prices of products, the people of the United States are today giving up to private monopolies more than a million dollars a day at a conservative estimate. Rather than allow this enormous exploitation, it would be cheaper for the government to issue bonds and buy at once some of our major railroad systems."

Foundation Dangerous

Pinchot described the Rockefeller foundation as dangerous.

"Gratitude is a lively sense of favors yet to come," he said, and because of this, he feared the foundation and the education board might have a bad effect on education.

A university or school receiving benefits from either, naturally would curb radicalism among its professors, he said.

"The smaller colleges of this country, are full of instructors," he said, "who have found their chairs in the large universities untenable, and have left them, owing to influences which were irresistible, but too subtle to complain about aloud. The foundation and education board are providing to the best of their ability their education shall gain as little understanding as possible of the problems of industrial democracy. Today, our universities are teaching practically nothing in the realm of up-to-date economics."

LONDON DECLARES GERMANY WORRIED BY RUSS ATTACK

Assert Men Are Being Drawn from Flanders to Meet Drive on Konigsberg

BY ED E. KEEN

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Germany is alarmed at the new sweep of the czar's armies upon Konigsberg. Reinforcements are being hurried to halt advance of the Russian legions, now less than fifty-five miles from the fortress itself.

This was the news brought here today in dispatches from Amsterdam and Copenhagen. Amsterdam has unconfirmed rumors that several trainloads of Germans were moving from the Flanders battle front to reinforce von Hindenburg in the east. These regiments were said to be part of the fresh forces that reached the fighting line only a few days ago in expectation of a new German offensive from Arras to the Belgian sea coast.

In military circles the Russians' march upon Konigsberg at the present moment is regarded as a master stroke. The grand duke, it is believed, seized his opportunity while German forces were being withdrawn from Poland and sent into Austria to begin a sudden drive toward the Gulf of Danzig.

Official statements from Berlin however, continue to ignore the new Russian movement. The German war office so far has contented itself with a statement that Russian attacks north of Gumbinnen have been repulsed.

GOVERNOR COMING HERE TO SPEAK AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Lincoln's and Washington's Birthdays to be Commemorated in Auspicious Exercises February 22

Governor Emanuel L. Philipp will be the chief speaker at a joint Washington and Lincoln celebration which will be held in the auditorium of the Normal school here on the evening of February 22, Washington's birthday.

This announcement was made today by President Fasset A. Cotton, president of the Normal school. William F. Wolfe, of this city, resident regent of the state normal board, will also speak at the celebration.

A special program of music will be prepared by the Normal school for the event, and Mrs. T. H. Campion, wife of the principal of the La Crosse county agricultural school, has agreed to read Mrs. Andrews' famous work "The Perfect Tribute," as a feature of the program.

What Governor Philipp's topic will be has not been announced, although it is expected to be a discussion of the life and deeds of the two national heroes in whose honor the celebration is to be held.

MRS. VOECK SEEKS TO HOLD VILLAGE FOR DEAD HUSBAND

The industrial commission will meet in La Crosse Monday to determine whether Mrs. Alice Voeck, whose husband was murdered by Walter Jones at West Salem recently, is entitled to compensation under the workmen's compensation act. Mrs. Voeck asks damages from the village of West Salem. Voeck had been deputized to assist in arresting Jones.

Among other cases to be heard is that of Mrs. James Shaw vs. the Heileman Brewing company; John Schneider vs. La Crosse Gas and Electric company, and Morris Christoferson vs. C. F. Thompson.

HAUKLAND FUNERAL MONDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline M. Haukland, who died Wednesday, will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon from the undertaking rooms of Tetley, Sletten and Dahl. Rev. H. G. Magelsen will officiate. Interment will be made at Oak Grove cemetery.

DRESDEN CALLED GERMAN FLORENCE

City Noted for Architecture and Collections of Art Says Dr. Maurer

POTSDAM INTERESTING TO VISIT

Many Reminiscences of Frederick III Recalled by Palace and Sans Souci

Souci

(BY DR. A. A. MAURER.)

Dresden, the capital of Saxony, is often referred to as "The Florence of Germany" on account of its architecture and collections of art. The principal places of interest are located in and around the "Zwinger," such as the world-renowned picture gallery, said to contain more than 3,000 paintings, among them Raphael's "The Sistine Madonna," which occupies a separate room and is protected by two guards, one stationed at the door and the other near the picture, presumably to prevent a militant from poking a hole in the canvas. In England and in Scotland a woman is not allowed to enter a gallery unless accompanied by a man, or by a special permit. Nearby hangs "The Sleeping Girl." This picture holds the crowds. Cook's guide found it difficult to hustle his party by in order to keep up his schedule.

The Palace of Justice attracted my attention. Facing the entrance and over the door are the following three figures in striking relief: to the left the head of a detective, with never-sleeping eyes, over the center that of a judge, and to the right a criminal, with a heavy chain around his neck.

Museum for Porcelain

The Museum Johanneum (long for John) is given up wholly to porcelain and historical collections. The Royal Palace (Georgentor-Schloss) with its "Green Vault" containing the unrivaled collection of articles of ivory, gold, silver, rare and precious stones, in my opinion does not compare with the Medici collection (especially in rare and precious stones) in the Uffizi gallery in Florence. The Japanese Palace, besides its own collections, holds the royal library and collection of antiquities. The new Hoftheater is the finest in Germany.

The Neues Rathaus (new municipal building) as in most continental cities, has a "Rathskeller" (basement restaurant) run by the city. Here at the head of the stairs is stationed a king's jester in bronze. Everybody, young and old, going in or coming out of the restaurant, or passing on the walk, takes a twist with his fingers at the jester's nose.

The King's garden (Kgl. Grosse Garten) is one of the largest and finest in all Europe; besides being thickly wooded, it has a number of fair sized lakes. On the banks of the largest is the King's Palace.

Streets Wide and Clean

The streets in both business and residential districts are wide, clean and lined with large trees. Public as well as private houses have huge flower boxes at the windows (very much as La Crosse had during and after the home-coming). Residences are surrounded by considerable ground. One corner near the street is occupied by a small circular or square building resembling a toy cottage, consisting of one room, used for private entertainment.

The River Elbe runs through and divides the old from the new part. A number of beautiful bridges connect the different sections of the city. The banks on either side are high and have walks and drives fully 200 feet wide. Back of this is terraced and lined by out-door cafes, parks and concert gardens.

The scenery on the Elbe from Dresden to Teichen (Austria) some 60 miles, equals any on the continent. Going up river on the right side the banks are some 100 to 150 feet high. Back of this the land is flat or slightly rolling. On the left bank mountains rise from the water's edge. A number of mountain streams (large enough for small pleasure boats) find their way into the Elbe through narrow deep canyons. The sides and tops of the mountains as well as the valleys are dotted with castles and summer homes. A splendid road follows the bank. The Elbe as well as the Danube is deep and swift (not sluggish as our rivers). An island, slough or a sandbar is seldom, if ever, seen. It was here that I saw a log raft floating down river with oars in the front and rear, as was customary on the Mississippi forty years ago.

Potsdam Royal Favorite

Potsdam, "the Versailles of Prussia," (20 minutes by rail and one and a half hours' ride by boat) is noted for its gardens (parks) palaces, and as having long been the favorite home of royalty, especially Frederick the Great, and the present Kaiser.

It is but a few minutes' walk from the city to Potsdam, and the Kaiser's bodies of Frederick III, his queen and three or four of their children. It was here that I was short changed when buying tickets of admission.

Frederick III is known as "Prussia's King of Peace," on account of his dislike for war, although having won honors and medals for bravery in both the French and Austrian wars. It is said that he made the following statement as he entered Paris with regiment: "I do not like war. Should it become my duty to reign I will never declare a war; but use every effort to prevent war."

Recalls Old Quarrel

Many who have passed the half century mark will recall the almost international trouble caused by Victoria Louise, wife of Frederick III, who insisted that Sir Morrell Mackenzie (England's greatest specialist) be called to decide on the nature of the growth in Frederick's throat. The result of the consultation was that Morrell Mackenzie was given charge of the case. This engendered such bitter feeling that the crown prince and his wife went to San Remo in the Italian Alps, where they remained until the death of William I, when they returned to Berlin. Frederick was too ill to attend the funeral of his father; but watched it from a window in the palace at Charlottenburg. Shortly before his death he wrote the following on a tablet and handed it to his son the present Kaiser: "Learn to suffer without complaint."

Frederick chose a Jew as the first man to the order of the Black Eagle to show his disapproval of their persecution in Prussia. Frederick's reign was a short one (ninety days).

A two-minute's walk takes you to the fountain in Sans Souci garden, with its thousands of gold fish. From here you climb a staircase (several hundred in number) to the palace of Sans Souci, often called "The Villa of Sans Souci" of account of its resembling a central apartment with a row of connecting apartments on either side. Over a window in the center are the words "Sans Souci (free from care)."

At the top of the stairs, to your right, overlooking the garden under a flat stone covered with moss, lies buried "Signora Biche," Frederick's favorite greyhound. It was Frederick's wish to be buried beside his dogs. Signora Biche's fondness for chocolate was responsible for the reinstatement of a former favorite employe of the king, who ran away hoping to marry a rich widow with whom he had a supposedly serious flirtation. After spending his money and being rejected, he returned to Sans Souci to ask forgiveness. Knowing Biche's weakness for sweets he entered the King's study with his palm full of chocolates. Signora's seeming fondness for the ex-employe gained him his pardon and position.

Walking to the rear of the building where visitors enter you pass by a row of busts of Romans.

The room Voltaire occupied during his stay at Sans Souci is a curiosity. It seems that Voltaire was a great eater and always carried fruits and sweets in his pockets. He also was very untidy. During Voltaire's absence Frederick decorated the room with wood carvings representing all kinds of fruits, game and vegetables, the dressing table with a small depression as a washing bowl and around the bowl a number of small jars filled with nail polish, creams and powder.

King was Musician

The central apartment is the dining hall where he entertained the wit and brains of his time. Adjoining this is the music room where he gave private concerts, he himself playing the flute. His flute is lying on the table in its accustomed place. The present Kaiser has on several occasions tried to imitate his noble ancestor by giving concerts in this same music room, playing Frederick's flute.

Nearby is the famous windmill about which Frederick and his owner, a miller and baker, had a prolonged legal controversy. Frederick wished to purchase and tear it down. The baker finally won out. Frederick then generously gave the baker money to enlarge the mill. This mill is still owned by descendants of the baker. On several occasions they were about to put it on the market, not being able to keep up the improvements and pay the taxes. Kaiser William I and the present Kaiser furnished the necessary funds, saying that the mill was part of Prussian history and therefore must remain in the baker's family.

Disliked Laziness

Frederick was an early riser, his valet having a standing order to awaken him at 4 o'clock. Should he fail to arise promptly, the valet was to throw a cold towel on Frederick's face. Frederick once caught a guard fast asleep on a sofa and at once ordered all sofas and couches reduced in width, to prevent anyone from lying on them.

Frederick died seated in a chair by an open window, an old Diener and his favorite dog were the only ones present. On a table nearby is a small clock which was stopped at the time of the Kaiser's death, the hands point to 2:30 a. m. This is the clock that many historians claim Napoleon took with him to St. Helena. The Germans deny most emphatically.

Money Saving Suggestion

This is a year of economy, when careful housekeepers make every penny count. The publishers of the La Crosse Tribune took that into consideration in making arrangements with The American Magazine and the Woman's Home Companion. Read this letter from one subscriber to the Woman's Home Companion:

"Editor, Woman's Home Companion
New York City.

Dear Editor: I figure that the $1.50 which I spent for the Woman's Home Companion a year ago has saved me nearly $30. I am not going to trouble you by sending a complete record, but I have kept it from day to day. I figure that Miss Farmer's cooking suggestions have saved me at least ten dollars on my marketing, and that we have had better meals at less cost. Miss Gould wrote me a long personal letter which told me just how to make one of my last year's dresses over into this year's style. This saved me at least ten dollars.

And your crocheting and knitting pages helped me to make Christmas presents which were more attractive than anything I could have bought in the store and saved me practically all my Christmas money. I consider that every issue of the Woman's Home Companion will save three or four times what it costs."

HYDROS FEATURE BIG BOAT SHOW

All Types of Water Speeders to Be Shown at Chicago During Month of February

GREAT POWER UNNECESSARY

Remarkable Time Made by Skimmers with but Little Horsepower

High speed on the water—or rather over it—is one of the interesting developments of boat building of the past half dozen years. Experiment finally proved to the builders that the theory of building a sharp, narrow boat that could "sneak" through the water while the water wasn't aware, was wrong, and that to get real speed they must plan to glide

ing Eagle," a tiny hydro which is now making a trip through Virginia and Carolina waterways to Florida. She carries only 12 horse power, a little two-cylinder Eagle motor, but she clips off 22 miles an hour very easily and is said to be capable of 25 miles running light.

The other extreme of speed is seen in "Baby Speed Demon," 11," last year's American champion and winner of the big southern races this month in Florida. She is only 20 feet long, but an eight-cylinder Sterling of 225 horse power has driven her at the rate of 54.54 miles an hour. It will be noted that the increase in speed is not in proportion to the increase in horsepower, for above 30 miles an hour the miles come harder, and a big increase in power is necessary for every mile of speed gained.

Another interesting example of the modern hydroplane is the "Warren-Groat," also a 20 footer which has made 43 miles an hour with a motor half the power of the "Demon's"—a four cylinder Wisconsin of 5.1 inch bore and 5.5 inch stroke. It is improbable that three boats could be selected which would better illustrate the accomplishments of the hydroplane or gliding boat. The "Baby Speed Demon 11" is to be shipped

UNIVERSITY HIT BY ECONOMY PLAN

Legislature Proposes to Repeal $50,000 Appropriation for Men's Dormitories Passed in 1913

AIRS MAKE STRONG PROTEST

Eighty-one Agricultural Societies Declare the Withdrawal of State Aid Would Cripple Them

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—The big fight on the University of Wisconsin opened yesterday in the closing session of the legislature for the week, when the proposition to do away with the appropriation for the men's dormitories was introduced in the assembly by Assemblyman Henry Hoffman of Calumet county.

Mr. Hoffman's bill proposes that the grant of $50,000 made two years ago for the construction of this building be repealed. It is expected that this will be done.

Assemblyman Metcalfe, Milwaukee socialist, will introduce a joint resolution to amend the constitution to make the legislature of the state independent of the supreme court. This resolution, which will be brought in next week, takes from the supreme court the power to repeal any law passed by the legislature.

Fair Associations Protest
Letters in opposition to Mr. McGowan's bill to withdraw state aid from the agricultural societies of the state are being received by members of the legislature. Eighty-one inter-county and intra-county fairs are annually held in this state, and it is estimated that the state aid offer covers eighty per cent of the premiums. It is estimated that 972,000 people visit the fairs in the state each year.

It is the present disposition of the progressives to oppose the appointment by Governor E. L. Philipp of Walter Alexander of Milwaukee as a member of the state railroad commission to succeed David Harlowe.

The progressives take the position that the appointment of two new members to this commission will be a blow to the general confidence of the business interests and of the people in the railroad rate board.

Despite the fact that Governor Philipp in his message to the legislature endorsed the efficiency of the railroad commission, the work of that body is to be made an issue at this session of the legislature. Backed by the common council of Milwaukee, the socialists will fight for a bill to take from the commission the right to control and regulate public utilities.

Assemblyman Vint will introduce a bill giving to his city the right to regulate public utilities and the opposition to this measure will be based upon the theory that to enact such a law would be to destroy the railroad commission.

REEDSBURG WINS GAME FROM SPARTA
SPARTA, Wis., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Sparta high school basketball team went down to defeat Thursday night before the Reedsburg five.

The game was opened by a lucky shot by the Reedsburg center. Reedsburg continued to make gains while luck seemed to shy Sparta players. The first half closed with the score 11 to 12 in favor of Reedsburg.

The end of the second half showed a score of 25 to 40.

Class Championship Won.
In a preliminary game between the sophomores and the juniors of the high school, the class basketball championship was decided in favor of the juniors with a score of 11 to 7. This is the third consecutive time that the 1916 class has won the interclass game.

over the top of the water, and thus escape the immense resistance. This has developed the modern hydroplane, a craft that once under way virtually slips along on top of the water like a pebble slides over a sleety pavement.

The hydroplane in its latest development will be a feature of the National Motor Boat show in Chicago the first week in March. An event which is attracting the attention of the motor boat "fans" all over the country. One of the singular things about the modern hydroplane is that tremendous power is not always necessary to attain high speed. Of course if sixty miles is the goal, "horsepower" must be employed by the hundreds, but there's many a little hydro capable of 25 or 30 miles an hour that carries only a "horse" of power for every mile in speed.

A notable example of this is "Flying Eagle," a tiny hydro which is now making a trip through Virginia and Carolina waterways to Florida. She carries only 12 horse power, a little two-cylinder Eagle motor, but she clips off 22 miles an hour very easily and is said to be capable of 25 miles running light.

OUR NAVY THE "BIGGEST UNIVERSITY IN AMERICA!"

Remarkable Success Crowns New Educational System Inaugurated by Secretary of the Navy Daniels—Every Battleship an Interesting School.

OPPORTUNITY! Preparation! Success!

What really wonderful words they are! They dominate to day the lives of every patriotic young American with good red blood in his arteries.

They mean achievement. They mean more self respect. They mean honorable recognition. They mean, above all, content and happiness.

Stop a moment, young man, if your eyes happen to fall on this. It may be of vital importance to you. It may result in opportunity for you, in preparation for you, in success for you, and then achievement, more self respect, honorable recognition and content and happiness.

It is a very simple thing, yet a very remarkable and interesting thing, that has taken place in the great United States navy—a thing which spells opportunity, preparation, success.

A Plan With a Purpose.

To begin at the beginning, an achievement is usually the result of a pre-conceived plan, the fruit of an idea, advanced with persevering effort. Secretary Daniels' idea of the navy is for one large enough and powerful enough to make war with the United States too unpleasant in its consequences to be seriously considered by any foreign power and at the same time a navy that will receive young boys with untrained habits and little technical skill and transform them into young men trained to discipline, physically fit and possessed of a practical knowledge of technical mechanics that would enable them to bear more than their share of the work of making our nation the greatest in the world. He believes "the man is greater than the machine." It is self evident that nothing, not even the most perfectly developed apparatus, can operate with out the aid of the human element. Men must be on hand to start and stop the machinery at the proper time, to divert it this way or that, to keep its bearings well oiled and to get from it its maximum efficiency. It follows reasonably that the more skilled the men the more the machine can be made to do and that if the skill and ambition of the enlisted personnel are enhanced the efficiency of the service will be increased to that extent.

Recruiting had been desultory during the winter and spring of 1912-13, and at a time when the enlisted force of the navy was expected to be and at that time of the year usually was at its greatest strength it was found to be nearly 5,000 short. Was the call of the navy losing its charm? Could it be that the navy did not attract American youths in numbers sufficient to man its ships? If so, that attraction must be provided. It was at this time that Secretary Daniels perfected his plans for making the navy even more attractive to young men by opening doors to promotion and for co-ordinating and expanding the existing educational facilities of the service on the axiomatic principle that knowledge is power.

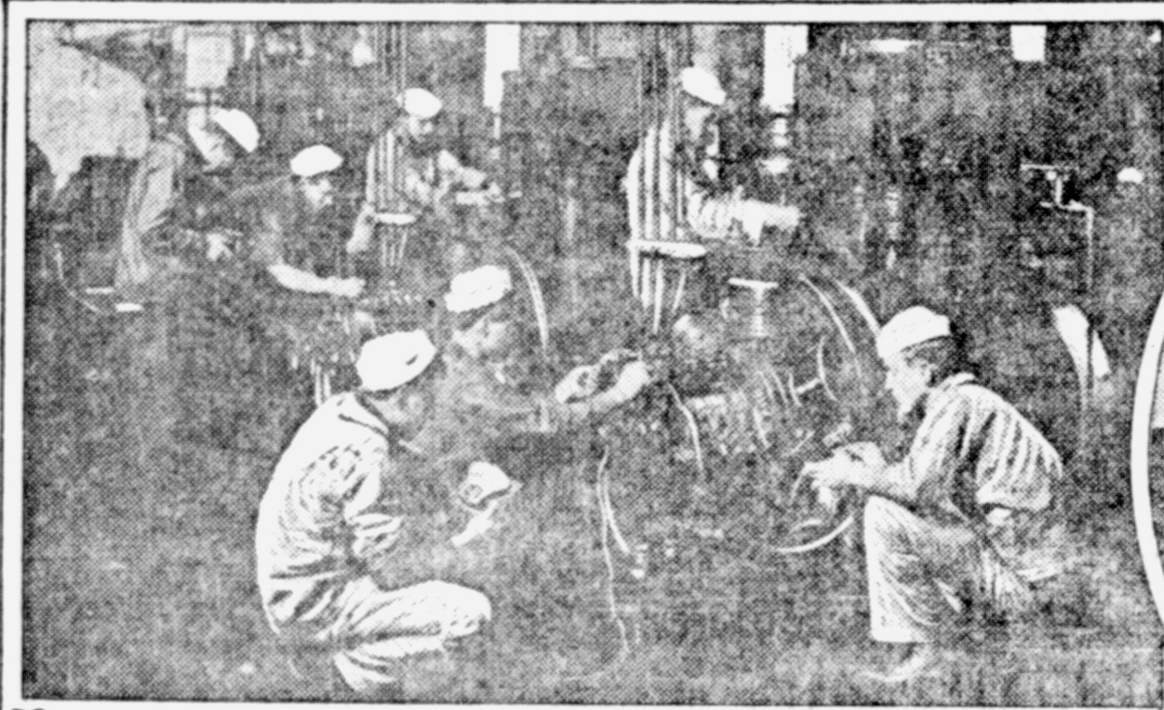

We know that a bargain, to be fair, must be mutually beneficial. Both parties must be profited by it. The navy speaks and says: "I need men. The best men only are desired. I know intelligent and ambitious men will give me better service than the indolent and ignorant, and in order to get the best I am not only going to give them an opportunity to succeed, but help them materially while they are making use of the opportunity."

Every Battleship a School. Secretary Daniels planned to further educate and train Uncle Sam's blue-jackets. He planned to take the unskilled recruit and make him skilled, so that he would be more efficient to the country and to himself.

And the plan has succeeded wonderfully, splendidly. The navy is today so fully recruited there is a waiting list of applicants. Only one of eight first applicants is accepted. They must be men of character, good physique and mental ability. Such men are, however, in demand to replace others as enlistments expire, and their applications are welcomed by the navy department.

An office is maintained in the post-office building, Indianapolis, Ind., for the distribution of literature to prospective recruits and others interested in service in the navy, and information is sent promptly to all who request it.

When he enters the recruit finds the navy the "biggest university in America." He is well grounded in educational necessities. He has a chance to learn a trade. There is always room for trained men, and the most promising of unskilled recruits are chosen to specialize on the work for which they are best fitted. As in all other fields, the best man has the right of way, but each recruit, irrespective of his relative ability, is given every facility to improve and may achieve later in his enlistment the rating he was at first denied because of his deficiencies. Young men sufficiently skilled in any number of trades, such as electricity, machinery, carpentry, radiography, plumbing, printing, blacksmithing, boiler-making, hospital and commissary stewarding, may qualify and from the start receive instruction designed to improve their professional efficiency, and young men of education and clerical ability will find the yeoman's branch presenting opportunities for success. Thus under Secretary Daniels' new system the man-of-war's man is prepared. He can find his opportunity and success earlier in or out of the navy.

Doesn't this all appeal very vividly to the imagination? Think what it means! A young American, perhaps with only a cramped education, with out a trade, enlists. The navy immediately starts to help him, to improve him mentally, morally and physically. For six months he goes to school again at a training station, a school more practical, more direct, more personal more satisfying than the one he possibly neglected or had no opportunity to attend a few years back. At once he becomes improved, more of a man. Then he goes aboard a battleship. He keeps on learning, improving.

Secretary Daniels' Plan. But let Secretary Daniels tell about his system in his own words. He says: "By the double opportunity on shipboard of mastering a useful trade and at the same time enlarging whatever academic educational advantages they have had the navy attracts the very best of our youth to it. And that is what it wants—young men who enlist for the very love of the career, combined with whatever other practical advantages and opportunities it may offer that will protect them in case of detachment from the service by giving them the qualifications to take up a definite line of work.

Officers as Teachers. "On each ship the school of instruction is under the general direction of the commanding officer, the executive officer having immediate charge, he in turn, being assisted by all commissioned officers and by such warrant and petty officers as may be necessary.

"It has become the duty of division officers carefully to examine all men under their supervision, noting the deficiencies of each man, the amount of instruction he may have received at the training station, the branches in which further instruction is most needed, the fitness of each man for promotion, the branch for which he is best suited and the personal preferences and ambitions of each individual in order that classes may be formed to secure progress and improvement in the mental and technical training of men in every branch of the navy service.

"The instruction in the academic department is compulsory for all enlisted men who are not well grounded in the common school branches, as determined at the training stations or upon first enlistment or by an examination of all men who have not yet completed two years' service in the navy. The subjects embraced in this department are reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, geography and history."

Bluejackets' Manual Simplified. To make the naval or professional instruction easy as well as systematic throughout the service subjects are prescribed which every man, irrespective of his rating, should know, as well as subjects which his special rating requires him to be familiar with. So during the last year the Bluejackets' Manual has been revised, making it simpler for every man to qualify himself on all matters which his rate necessitates. In addition special manuals have been prepared for the pay, medical and engineer departments to assist in school work.

United States Man-o'-War's Men Now Taught Trades They Like For Their Own Betterment—Efficiency of Navy Is Thus Greatly Increased.

head. Here they are taught all that pertains to torpedoes and mines. They learn to assemble torpedoes and are taught diving and electricity as applied to ordnance mechanism.

Mines are made, set and exploded by the class. The student must learn to make the most deadly explosives from raw chemicals. Torpedoes and gun-cotton are equally interesting studies. The student learns the intricate, watch-like mechanism of the torpedo so that he can almost assemble the thousands of its pieces in the dark. Despite the danger Uncle Sam has never had a serious accident at this school. The men are taught the danger of explosives and how to handle them safely.

At the Charleston (S. C.) machinists' school men interested in mechanics study boilers and engines from both a theoretical and practical viewpoint. Here the young men of the navy become mechanical engineers and drafts-men.

Carpenters, plumbers, blacksmiths, coppersmiths, electric wiring experts, painters and cooks are turned out by the scores at Norfolk.

In the hospital corps training school the hospital apprentice learns the properties and effect of all kinds of medicinal drugs. He must also take a thorough course in anatomy and hygiene.

Each year the naval training station at Chicago turns out about 1,500 able seamen. Nine out of ten of these men enter the naval service fresh from the middle west farms. After taking the six months' course they are prepared to go aboard ships, ready for the duties of a man-o'-war's man.

Naval Academy. Before a midshipman graduates from the Naval academy he receives a special course in teaching in preparation for the instruction of enlisted men when he goes into active service. The secretary of the navy, through a bill passed by the last session of congress, is now empowered to appoint annually fifteen enlisted men as midshipmen to the Naval academy. The better educational facilities at training stations and aboard ships will, with every passing year, enable ambitious and capable youths to qualify for this instruction and prepare for commissions in the navy.

Re-enlistments Increase. Every young man who enters the navy with an earnest desire to improve himself is given that coveted opportunity. The present attractiveness of the naval service is confirmed by the increasing number of men who having served one or more terms, re-enlist for another. When a man has served his time he leaves the service much better prepared for the battle of life than when he entered. He is almost sure of a place in the world's mart of trade. The navy trained man is in demand. If the sailor re-enlists as many do, he gets more pay and quicker advancement.

So, you see, young and patriotic American, if you have read this all through, that the United States navy today stands for opportunity, preparation, success. It offers this to the sailors in return for the superior service required and stands ready to co-operate with men of ambition and ability that they may be better able to serve it and themselves with efficiency and success.

WHIRLWIND GAME IS WON BY HIGHS

Come from Behind and Beat Baraboo 22 to 20 at Hixon Gymnasium Last Night

The greatest victory which the high school has won in basketball this season was won last night against Baraboo. The final score was 22 to 20 in favor of Horne's men. A faster game of basketball has not been seen at the high school gymnasium since the Madison game of last year. The two teams played about evenly throughout the game and the team work of both sides was excellent.

During the first half and during the first part of the last half every thing seemed to be in favor of the visiting team. They kept ahead of Zeisler's team by two, four or five points all the time. At the close of the first half the score was 16 to 11 in favor of the visitors.

While the teams were resting between halves, the cheering nearly shook the plaster from the walls. Cheers for both Baraboo and La Crosse had equal place in the minds of the rooters.

After five minutes of play in the second half La Crosse tied the score at 18 to 18. Baraboo made another basket a few moments later and put the score at 20 to 18. Two baskets on fouls by Fay tied the score again at 20 to 20 where it remained for some time. A basket by Fay after a long fight for the ball on the part of the La Crosse men won the game for La Crosse. The cheering immediately became so intense that the referee's whistle could not be heard over the noise, so that time had to be taken out for the crowd to cool off. The rest of the game was a guard game on the part of Horne's men which was so successful that Baraboo only had two shots at their basket, both from the middle of the floor.

The lineup follows: Baraboo: Terry, f.; Pearson, f.; Kaizer, c.; Taden, g.; Spracher, g.

La Crosse: Zeisler, f.; Kelly, f.; Fay, c.; Kulcynski, g.; Grenzner, g. Baskets by individuals: Zeisler, 4 field and one free throw; Kelly, 2 field; Fay, 2 field and 3 free throws; Pearson, 1 field; Laden, 4 field and one free throw; Spracher, 4 field and one free throw.

A preliminary game between the advanced seniors and Advanced Sophomores was won by the advanced seniors by a score of 11 to 5. This is the second game which the advanced seniors have won this year.

The referee for the big game was Tutor of Baraboo; Bradish of this city, umpired.

After the game the usual reception was held. Dancing continued from nine-thirty until eleven-thirty.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Probable widening of European war zone and imminence of this probability as evidenced in news dispatches, together with unfavorable weather in Argentina, and strength of Liverpool's market, despite yesterday's weakness here served to shoot wheat to new high price levels today. Before skyrocketing was over, May wheat touched 152 and July options 135. Closing prices were 151 1/2 and 134 1/2 for May and July respectively. The opening prices of 149 1/2 and 132 1/2 were over night advances of 1 1/2 and 3/4 c respectively. There were recessions, early but toward the opening of the last hour the prices began to ascend.

There was a renewal in the market strength of corn, due to the heavy export buying. Opening at 80 1/2 c and 82 1/2 c—over night advances of 3/4 c and 1/2 c respectively, corn at one time touched 82c and 83 1/2 c and closed at those prices.

Oats opened at 59 1/2 c and 57 1/2 c, which were advances respectively of 1/2 c and 1/4 c over yesterday's close. Heavy buying at one time pushed the prices to 60 1/2 c and 58 1/2 c.

Provisions opened lower than yesterday's close, but closed higher.

Week Financial

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The course of prices on the Stock exchange today showed apparently that the refusal to fix a lower "minimum" on Steel common had produced a good effect. It so indicated that professional selling for the decline has been the main influence in the week's reaction. The market opened at or above yesterday's closings and, in the two hours of business, numerous

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 30.—One million dollars was said to have been involved in the sale by the Atlas Oil company to Behbedum, Trees & Parker of Pittsburg, of holdings in the Louisiana and Oklahoma oil fields. WANT PATMONT FOR ARSON

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 30.—Milwaukee police today were seeking Rev. Louis R. Patmont, "disappearing preacher," on a warrant issued in Newark, N. J., charging him with arson. The charge is based on the destruction of a building in Newark in which the Patmonts were interested, two years ago.

NOTED CABARET SINGER WILL LEAD BILL AT THE MAJESTIC

"Slim Princess" Marion Harris and Ezra Kendall, Jr., will lead First Half-Week Show at Local House

"The Slim Princess of Song," Miss Marion Harris, will lead an exceptionally pleasing vaudeville bill at the Majestic the first half of next week. Miss Harris has a reputation in Chicago as the city's most noted cabaret singer. Among the many songs she has popularized are "Eagle Rock," "I Don't Love Nobody Much," "Everybody Rag With Me," "Show a Little Love," "The Pan-American Fair," "Ballin' the Jack," "Follow the Crowd," and many others. Her husband, Phil Gold, who is appearing with her during her engagement in this city, was for years manager of a large musical publishing house in New York.

Dividing interest with Miss Harris will be Ezra Kendall, Jr., son of the famous author and comedian who died in 1910. Young Kendall is appearing with Gladys Hinchley in a mirthful sketch called "The Messenger Boy."

Clever animal imitations, talking and singing will diversify the program in the act of Charles and Sallie Dunbar, and the "Tip Top Topical Songsters," Billy Chase and La Tour Charlotte, will put over a series of the very latest musical comedies. An out of the ordinary cycling act, introducing a monoplane in its daring and sensational course, will be another feature of the all-star program. The cyclists are the famous Merriott troupe. A Pathe news film will also be shown.

DUFFY WINS HEART OF KAYO KRAUSE

Referee George Stops Ertel Krause Last Night; Schieber Licked by a Substitute

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 30.—Referee George Duffy was in line for a Carnegie medal today for saving Kayo Krause's life last night. Not content with beating up Krause in a nice, gentlemanly manner of five rounds, Kewpie Ertel, the St. Paul dynamo, hauled off and threw a whole flock of gloves into Krause's well known countenance in the sixth. Just as some humane person started to call the coroner, Referee Duffy lunged himself bravely into the swirl of arms and called the game.

Maurice Flynn, a Chicago feather, battled for Billy Defoe of Red Wing, Minn., against Peanut Schieberl of Rock Island, Ill. Nobody was displeased with the substitution, with the possible exception of Peanut. The Chicago boy was in poor condition, but gained an easy shade in ten rounds.

Barney O'Neill of Milwaukee and Ed Billings of Superior boxed a six round draw. Young Leonard of Racine whipped Jimmy Troy of Milwaukee in six rounds.

NELSONS LAND ON EAGLES' SECONDS

North Siders Back in Old Position as Result of Win Last Night Over the Aerie Men

The gap between the Gunds and the Nelsons in the City Ten Pin league is the same as before the Gunds took three straight from the Eagle Firsts Wednesday night. The Nelsons last night trampled over the Eagle second team for three games and took up their old position three laps behind the leaders.

The first game was the most threatening for the winners. Had the other four men in the Eagle team rolled as did Burnett they would probably have taken the game. Burnett rolled 220, the highest score ever made by a member of the team. Eaton of the winning aggregation beat him out for high score of the match by two pins. Costello, a newcomer, rolled scores of 171, 196 and 212 for the Nelsons.

The scores:

Renadurer 171 151 169
Wittenberg 168 176 171
Costello 171 196 212

FED LEADER SAYS DEAL HAS JUMPED

Gilmore Announces that the Hero Outfielder of the Braves Has Hurdled to Feds

GILMORE CONSIDERS NEW LEAGUE

Mike Gibbons Will Enter Heavyweight Class and Meet Gunboat Soon

BY HAL SHERIDAN

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Events follow in the wake of James A. Gilmore, just as naturally as one sun follows another. Hardly had the portly frame of the Federal proxy escorted itself in the Waldorf, when came the announcement that Charley Deal, substitute infielder for the Boston Braves, and the man who practically won the second game of the world's series for them, had taken the hurdle over to the Federals. Outfielder Leslie Mann, it was hinted, would follow today.

Gilmore and his cohort, Robert B. Ward, left today for New Haven, Conn., where they expect to establish Federal league Number Two. Thirteen New England towns, said Gilmore, are clamoring for franchises and only eight can be selected.

"We are not looking for a subsidiary organization," said Gilmore today, as he stepped aboard his train. "They're looking for us. If this eastern circuit is formed, it will be with local capital. The Federal league isn't in a position to finance another league, but we can support one easily."

Mike Gibbons, the new heralded middleweight champion, will probably meet Gunboat Smith at Madison Square Garden next month. The St. Paul phantom announced today in a telegram to Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker, that he was ready to invade the heavyweight division and Johnston immediately assured him he could meet the gunner. Gibbons would probably weigh about 155 pounds in such a bout, while the best the gunner can do is 183.

FANATICAL FANCIES

William Krause, no relation, it is hoped, to the Mr. Krause who last night took an overdose of nose treatment from Kewpie Ertel at Milwaukee, seems to be responsible for a large amount of baseball talk circulated lately. Krause, by the way, is better known as manager of the newly organized La Crosse Athletics who are out for the city championship. Between Bill and Teddy, the semi-pro field is being kept alive here. Teddy lives on the North side.

It lay to Maurice Flynn, a Stock Yards featherweight, to beat Peanut Schieberl last night in their semi-windup match to the Ertel-Krause go in Milwaukee. The Chicagoan officiated in the absence of Billy Defoe, the Red Wing fighter. Flynn was in poor condition, we are informed. So was Schieberl, it's a fair guess.

The old saying to the effect that we never appreciate a good thing until it is gone was demonstrated last night when Ralph Bradish failed to appear as chief official at the La Crosse-Baraboo basketball game. Ralph would probably have eliminated a good deal of the soccer tactics displayed on both sides.

The fad of athletic teams carrying mottoes seems about to hit La Crosse. We would suggest, after seeing the basketball game last night at Hixon gymnasium that the slogan, "Soc et tu um" be adopted.

Nic Bartel was present at the baseball meeting the other night. We take it that Nic is casting longing eyes on the managership of the new club.

ANDREWS CALLS ON WHITE IN SICKBED

White was reported recovering rapidly today from the pneumonia attack which prevented the White-Welsh fight in New York.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 600 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. Chas. A. Beyer, Druggist, 503 Main street.
